

Ahmad Ibrahim is a full professor of Medicine, Hematology/Oncology and physiological science at the Faculty of Medicine and the National Lebanese University, a professor of Medicine at the Arab University of Beirut, and clinical associate-Department of Medicine at the American University of Beirut.

He graduated, from the University of Paris VII-School of Medicine in 1987. Then, he pursued a fellowship in Hematology/Oncology and Bone Marrow Transplantation at the University of Paris.

Doctor Ibrahim was appointed in 1993 as a full-time attending Physician/Associate professor in the Department of Hematology and Bone Marrow Transplantation at the Institute Gustave Roussy (IGR)-Villejuif/University of Paris XI. In 1997, he moved to Lebanon where he established the first Bone Marrow Transplantation Program at Makassed Hospital – Beirut which was affiliated with IGR/University of Paris XI in a French-Lebanese cooperation. Since 1997, Dr. Ibrahim, has been the head of the Division of Hematology/Oncology and the Director of the Bone Marrow Transplantation Program at Makassed Hospital. Since 2004, he has been appointed associate director of research for PhD Programs at the Faculty of Pharmacy/University Paris V. Since 2012, he has been board member of Masters Programs in stem cell engineering and applications at the faculty of Sciences of the National Lebanese University. Since 2016, he has been the director of the Cancer Center and the program of Hematology/Oncology and Bone Marrow Transplantation at the Middle East of Health University Hospital.

Dr. Ibrahim is actively involved in research particularly in the fields of hematological malignancies and hematopoietic stem cell transplantation. In 1993, he was nominated a core member of the European Organization for Research and Treatment of Cancer (EORTC) – Leukemias Cooperative Groups. In 1996, he was elected member of the French College of Hematology. Since 2009, he has been member of the Board of Directors of the Eastern Mediterranean Group for Blood and Bone Marrow Transplantation. He is member of the American Society of Hematology, European School of Medical Oncology, European Hematology Association, European Groups for Blood and Marrow Transplantation, the American Society for Blood and Marrow Transplantation and he is the current president of the Lebanese Society of Hematology and Blood Transfusion.

Dr. Ibrahim has taken an active role in the medical community-participating in numerous scientific meetings. He has authored and co-authored more than 200 medical publications and books chapters. He is also co-editor of a book in Hematology (edited in Paris-1992).

In 1992, he received the Research Award of the Medical School of the University of Paris VII, and in 1993, the award of the French Leagues against Cancer. In 2013, Dr. Ibrahim was awarded by the Lebanese Ministry of Health for his achievement in the field of hematopoietic stem cell transplantation in Lebanon.